

Reply to Harding Plan to End Strike In Mines Delayed

Proposal Made by President Includes Immediate Renewal of Work at Old Wages.

SEVERAL CONFERENCES
HELD AT WHITE HOUSE

President Proposes Joint Commission to Probe Industry and Settle Wage Disputes Permanently.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, D. C., July 10.—President Harding today placed before leaders of employers and employees of the anthracite and unionized bituminous coal fields, a government plan for settling the coal strike. It called for immediate resumption of work by miners now out at wage rates of March 31 last, for fixing of permanent wage levels by arbitration, and for an investigation to recommend solution of permanent problems in the coal industry.

Definite answers to the proposals were delayed tonight, although union officials informed the president they had no power to act, but would summon the general policy committee of the United Mine Workers of America here Saturday to consider the matter.

Several Conferences.
A number of conferences at the white house and at other offices with Secretaries Hoover, Fall, Davis and Attorney-General Daugherty participating, was taken to bring matters to this stage.

Alfred M. Ogle, chairman of the bituminous operators group, indicated that his associates considered an arbitration plan they had offered last week, for district settlements, "the best and fairest way" to get the mines open, but John L. Lewis, president of the union, classed this "an obsolete" in the light of the president's proposals.

Anthracite operators, although their committee was three times at the white house, maintained silence.

Both bituminous and anthracite sections of the general conference of the coal industry had indicated a deadlock today before President Harding brought forward the arbitration plan. The government, "concerned with coal production sufficient to meet the industrial and transportation requirements of the country," he said, "desired to have production resumed."

He proposed that mine workers should return on the old wage scale and that a commission of five representatives of the public, three of the miners and three of the operators, should fix before August 10 a temporary basic wage scale to be held in effect until March 1, 1923. If its deliberations should not result in a scale by August 10, the president further suggested that the wage levels at the time work was stopped should continue until a new scale was ready.

Probe of Industry.
In addition, the commission proposed, the president said, "should investigate exhaustively every phase of the coal industry and reveal every root of production and transportation." Congress would be asked, it was added, to make appropriations to finance and authorize its work.

"I have taken this short cut to the resumption of operations, because I believe it is in the interest of the public welfare," the president concluded. "When two great forces do not agree there must be a peaceful way to adjustment, and such arbitration opens the way."

Separate Meetings.
He enjoined all participants to give the proposal consideration in separate conferences, and this was done immediately. The miners formulated their temporary answer in a letter explaining that the national officers and district presidents called to the meeting were "without authority" to act.

John L. Lewis, president of the union, said the officers would not discuss the recommendations they might make to the full policy committee which has 126 members, but explained that it had full power to act.

Chairman Ogle, after various deliberations with his associates, the bituminous operators, declared that the general arbitration plan had not been voted on and that an answer to the president might be delayed. He declared that "one week ago, the bituminous operators represented had submitted a program of arbitration by districts to the miners' union officials in the conference" and it had been refused. The employers, likewise, had acceded to the government's suggestion that a committee of miners and operators be set up to mark out the districts.

Operators' View.
"It is utterly impossible that one board can consider the difficulties and conditions in these far-flung bituminous fields," he asserted in a statement to newspaper men, "and make up a wage scale in any reasonable time. That is why we suggested several boards of arbitration, to consider dif-

Sheriff, Seeking One Killer, Nabs Another Wanted for 20 Years

Thomasville, Ga., July 9.—Sheriff Davis last Friday went to Flint to arrest Jim Nelson, a negro, charged with killing another negro in Boston in 1914.

He missed Jim but instead ran into Frank Nelson, Jim's brother, wanted for killing his wife with a hoe about 20 years ago. The offense was committed so long ago that the negro probably thought it had been forgotten for he displayed genuine surprise when arrested.

Youngest Portia In United States Admitted to Bar

Pretty 17-Year-Old Savannah Girl Granted Lawyer's Privileges.

Savannah, Ga., July 10.—Savannah now claims the youngest Portia in the United States—Miss Thelma Lenore Harrell, a lassie barrister of barely seventeen years, who was formally admitted to practice in the state courts today by Judge Peter W. Mel-drum, of the Chatham superior court.

She recently passed the examination for entrance, having studied in local law offices since and before her graduation just a year ago from the Savannah high school. Her latest reading was in the office of Miss Stella Akin, Savannah's first woman lawyer. Miss Harrell is the third woman lawyer now member of the local bar.

She was presented in court today by G. S. Carrell and A. L. Purvis and was formally welcomed to the profession and the practice after she had in a steady voice taken the oath of loyalty to the constitution required of all lawyers upon admittance to the bar.

Miss Harrell is a pretty brunette. She is a good speaker. She will now, though a regular barrister, take another year's work in school and then finish with a year in the Columbia law school.

WOMAN RELEASED;
VICTIM MAY DIE

Stephens' Sister Blames
Mrs. Avera and She Will Prosecute If He Doesn't Recover.

Mrs. Helen Avera, who shot her former husband, Millard Stephens, Sunday, as she says, he broke into her home, 273 Jones avenue, threatening to kill her and take little 6-year-old Mildred Louise Stephens, was released from police station at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon under a $2,000 bond. P. P. Jackson, professional bondsman, is surety.

Stephens, according to surgeons at the Grady hospital is not expected to recover. Six bullets entered the abdomen, they state, and punctured the intestines.

Mrs. Avera was granted bond by Police Chief James L. Beavers at the instance of her attorney, Ellis B. Barrett, who summed up the evidence gathered by the police showing, he says, that she shot in defense of her life and the safety of her home and child.

As she left police station in company with her husband, C. Larry Avera, local prize fighter, and Attorney Barrett, Mrs. Avera again expressed regret for the necessity of the shooting, but said there was nothing else to do.

Mrs. Avera Sorry.
"I feel," said Mrs. Avera, "that I was within my rights in defending my life and that of my daughter, and I am sure that all who know the facts will agree with me. But, of course, I am sorry I had to shoot him."

Mr. Avera will go the limit in defending his wife's action, he stated Monday. He characterized the efforts of Stephens to "assault and attack a woman in her own home during the absence of her husband" as cowardly.

Stephens has served many terms in the changing and penitentiaries of the state for various offenses, according to the records of the courthouse and jail. Officers charge that he was

Georgia's Cotton Prospects Worst In United States

Yield Will Be Below That of Any One of Past 20 Years, According to Indications.

FIVE PER CENT DECREASE

Official Bureau of Agricultural Economics Report Also Shows Corn Crop Below Average.

BY MARION KENDRICK.
Georgia's cotton prospects are the worst in the United States and the 1922 yield—with the possible exception of last season—will be below that of any one of the past 20 years. The federal bureau of agricultural economics, of Atlanta, made this announcement Monday night.

Continuous rains during June, which prevented proper cultivation, and boll weevil damage have brought about this condition. Many farmers became discouraged in their efforts to produce a profitable cotton yield, it was declared, and their action in turning to other crops was a decisive factor in causing the state to show a 5 per cent decrease in acreage.

Georgia and South Carolina are the only states in the cotton belt to record a reduction in acreage this year, all others returning to normal figures. A total of 4,120,000 acres is planted in the fleecy staple in Georgia. Crop conditions in South Carolina are very similar to those in this state.

Weevil Damage.
"The destruction wrought by the boll weevil last year was disastrous," said Z. R. Pettet, the bureau's statistician. "In Georgia, the central and most important cotton district was practically wiped out. In 1922, the numbers of weevils present early in the season indicated a probable repetition if cotton were planted. The growers 'seeded down' their plantations, put them in corn, or allowed them to lie idle."

"South Georgia on the other hand has become accustomed to the weevil and has learned to fight him. The result is that more cotton has been planted in that section than in five or six years. The net increase there is about 15 per cent. North Georgia, with the exception of a few mountain counties, shows some decrease. Here the planting was limited by rain and soil conditions," he asserted.

Corn Below Average.
This season's corn crop is far below the average, according to the report. A forecast of 55,878,000 bushels is made for the 1922 yield. The crop is very late in the upper half of the state, but in the southern section, where favorable weather made early planting possible, the condition is better. Most complaint, however, is heard from the southwestern portion.

"In the central region," the report read, "the crop is extremely poor and many fields will not mature a crop. A great deal of the corn needs rain, but where showers have fallen material improvement is taking place. Some of the corn is now hard enough to feed in south Georgia. One of the interesting developments of the season is the planting of sweet corn as a truck crop. This has not been entirely successful, but is worthy continued experiment."

Sweet Potatoes.
"The sweet potato crop has been making good progress and offers a bright exception to the generally poor crops this season. There has been a slight increase in acreage, mostly in the western section, and the condition is better. Most complaint, however, is heard from the southwestern portion."

"Progress has been made in threshing the small grain crops, and they are turning out better than expected, but still are very much below the average."

"Alfalfa and clover have made very fair yields, but the other hay crops are somewhat below usual. In some sections the peas need rain, and the voluntary grasses had also begun to require moisture on the crop reporting date."

"Pastures are good, but beginning to deteriorate. The condition of peanuts, tobacco, sorghum, field beans, and other field crops was decidedly below usual. Acreage of peanuts and tobacco is also much below last season, and the total production will be accordingly low."

Fruit Crops.
"The apple prospect continues to improve. The total production will probably be greater than for several years. Peaches on the other hand, are materially lower than on the last crop reporting date, with the index figure of 60 as compared to 68 last year. Pears are as good as usual. Grapes and blackberries are considerably below."

"The production of watermelons is running above last year, due principally to the increased acreage. The condition of the vines and fruit is decidedly below average, nevertheless there is little doubt that the state will set a high record for the season. The cantaloupe season is about

McCalley to Ask City to Condemn Park School Site

Will Introduce Resolution at Meeting of School Board
Today.

A resolution requesting the city council to authorize the city attorney to proceed immediately with condemnation proceedings to acquire a ten-acre tract of the north end of Grant park as the site for the senior high school for girls, will be introduced before the board of education at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning by W. L. McCalley, chairman of the finance and building committee, it was announced Monday.

The regular weekly meeting of the board scheduled for Monday afternoon was postponed when a quorum failed to appear. Only two members of the board, Mr. McCalley and A. C. Merrill, were present.

In his resolution, Chairman McCalley proposes that the board concur with the recommendations of the school committee and the bond commission in requesting the city council to authorize City Attorney Mayson to proceed immediately with condemnation proceedings to acquire ten acres of the north end of Grant park as the site for the senior girls' high school. The property in question is described by the resolution as follows:

Beginning at the corner of Cherokee avenue and Sidney street and running thence 1,060 feet, in an easterly direction along Sidney street to the corner of Park avenue and Sidney street, thence 40 feet S. by E. to a point of 400 feet south of the corner of Cherokee avenue and Sidney street, thence 400 feet in a northerly direction on Cherokee avenue to the point of beginning.

Free of Conditions.
Mr. McCalley's resolution further provides that this tract be delivered to the board of education free of any conditions and that the board, with the concurrence of city council, acquire fifteen acres of what is known as the Jackson property on the south end of Grant park to be annexed to the park in exchange for the ten-acre tract to be utilized for the school site.

It is expected that a hot fight will ensue between members of the board on questions involved in the resolution as several members have announced that the girl's school should be located near the center of the downtown district, while others favor the park site.

The plans for the senior girls high school, now being drawn by A. Ten Eyck Brown, supervising architect, call for an expenditure of approximately one million dollars for the building, which will be one of the handsomest and most complete of any on the school building program.

When the house reconvenes Tuesday the fight on the state highway department will be resumed by Representative McMichael, of Marion. The house will resolve itself into a committee of the whole immediately after the period of unanimous consent is ended.

Representative Jones Perryman, of Talbot, succeeded in passing a resolution Monday calling on the state prison commission to furnish the house with detailed information concerning the number of prisoners at the state farm, the number of employees and salaries paid them and other information concerning administration of affairs at the farm. This information will be used by Representative Perryman's committee in drawing a bill incorporating certain changes recommended in a recent report of conditions at the prison farm made by five superior court judges appointed by Governor Hardwick.

In outlining his measure imposing a tax on soft drink syrups, Senator Boykin said the bill would be so framed that the tax would be paid by manufacturers. He contemplates ascertaining how many five-cent drinks can be made from a gallon of syrup and then placing a tax on each gallon which will amount to one half or one quarter of a cent on each drink. In other words, he explained, if a gallon of syrup will make 100 five-cent drinks, at the rate of one quarter of a cent a drink, the tax would be 25 cents on the gallon of syrup.

To All Syrups.
"I shall include a provision making this tax apply to all syrups shipped into the state just like the gasoline tax now applies to all gasoline shipped into the state," he said.

"Syrup manufactured in the state will be taxed at the plant where manufactured. Each gallon of syrup must bear a label showing that the tax has been paid. This plan will prevent the tax falling on the consumer, as the tax will be so small that the retail dealer cannot add it conveniently to the price of a five-cent drink. The government tax on such drinks has been dropped since the last session of the legislature. These drinks are luxuries, and it is a sound democratic principle that luxuries should bear their share of taxes and they should be taxed first before necessities are taxed."

Senator Boykin estimates that revenue from such a tax will more than pay for all books used in public schools. If there is more money received than is needed for school books, it will be provided in the bill that such money shall be turned over to county boards of education to be used solely for school purposes, he added.

"We have provided free schools for children; the state pays teachers and is now paying for transportation of children to and from certain isolated schools. There is no reason in the world why the state should not pay for text books. I have no doubt that the constitution of 1877 contemplated

Boykin to Introduce Measure

Department Will Be Resumed When House Reconvenes Tuesday.

Measures imposing a tax on soft drink syrups manufactured in Georgia or shipped into the state and on near beer drinks, proceeds of which will be used to purchase free text books for school children of the state, will be introduced in the house this week at the earliest possible moment, it was announced Monday by Senator J. H. Boykin, of the 29th district, who is at work preparing the bills.

These bills will be among the most important introduced in the general assembly at this session and will be far-reaching in their effect if passed, it was learned Monday. It will be stipulated in the bills that money raised by the measures shall be turned over to county boards of education on the same basis as school money is now allotted the boards, and is to be used in buying text books to be given free to school children.

Introduction of these measures probably will be the most interesting feature of the week's session which began Monday. The session of the house Monday was given over largely to passage of local bills, while the senate still maintained its filibuster over the tax equalization law, now running into its second week. A bill providing that railroads can give free transportation to sheriffs and prisoners in their charge was passed in the house. A resolution calling for investigation of the state board of entomology and a resolution creating a recess tax committee to study tax conditions after the present session were introduced. U. S. PLEDGE GIVEN

After Conference With President, Daugherty
Says Trains Will Run
Despite Shop Strike.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Bloomington, Ill., July 10.—Chicago and Alton railroad clerks tonight adopted a resolution announcing they would refuse to work under the protection of state troops.

Clerks on duty at the Union station and shops are to quit unless the soldiers are withdrawn. A committee left the mass meeting to serve the notice on the railroad management.

An effort is also being made to call a strike of the big four brotherhoods tomorrow. The conductors have called a meeting for 10 a. m. and the trainmen for 1:30 p. m. The engineers and firemen are also planning to meet.

A committee is to be sent to Chicago tomorrow to tell President W. G. Blied that the brotherhood men will not work under protection of guardsmen.

U. S. TAKES HAND
IN RAIL STRIKE.

Chicago, July 10.—With increasing numbers of state troops and emergency forces of United States deputy marshals on guard wherever outbreaks have been threatened, the government today announced that life and property would be protected, the mails continued, and interstate commerce not interrupted despite the strike of railway shopmen.

After a conference with President Harding, Attorney-General Daugherty said that the government would make sure that law and order were preserved. He said that the appointment of deputy marshals was authorized and that they would be sent in wherever strike disorders justified.

The attorney-general's announcement came shortly after Lieutenant Governor Sterling, who is acting governor of Illinois in the absence of Governor Snull, had ordered five companies of national guardsmen to Bloomington to protect the shops of the Chicago and Alton railroad. The ordering out of the state troops followed appeals from the authorities there who declared that civil authority had collapsed and the soldiers were needed to protect life and property. The strike sympathizers jeered the troops upon their arrival at Bloomington.

Following reports from Bloomington, that an effort would be made tomorrow to call a strike of the big four brotherhoods on the ground that they should not be compelled to work under the protection of state troops, word was given out in labor circles that Warren S. Stone, representing the engineers; L. E. Sheppard, head of the conductors, and W. S. Carter, representing the firemen, would arrive in Chicago soon to "discuss matters of policy" with the railway executives.

Shots at Clinton.
At Clinton, Ill., where the Illinois Central shops have been under guard of state troops since Saturday night when an outbreak was threatened following a fatal shooting affray, the day passed in comparative quiet although several shots were fired by sentries at a group of men who were believed to have been advancing to attack the shops. The attackers fled, none of them being injured. At Aurora, Ill., where an emergency force of deputy marshals has been on guard since the Burlington obtained a temporary injunction against violence Saturday, several hundred strikers and strike sympathizers held a silent parade about the shops. The demonstration was orderly and no arrests were made.

Aside from a few clashes, the can-

Georgia Mountain Scenes Make Hit With Atlantans

Howard to See Constitution Tour on Film.

BY PAUL STEVENSON.
Surpassing in many respects all scenic films shown in Atlanta in years "The Majesty of the Mountains," the scenic motion picture classic taken in the mountains of North Georgia on the recent tour of that section by a party of government officials under the auspices of The Constitution, was presented at the Howard theater Monday afternoon and pleased and amazed large crowds at all performances in that theater.

Offered under the favorable conditions found at this theater "The Majesty of the Mountains" proved to be a revelation to virtually all the people in the audience. Its rare beauty as a picture, the charm of its scenes; the sublimity of the great mountain ranges and peaks; the entrancing appeal of the vast forests and peaceful valleys; the wild dash of the waterfalls and rapids and the placid mountain lakes rounded out a picture which caused gasps of wonder in the audience.

From expressions of those who witnessed the film it is certain that this wonder picture will be well received in all sections of the state.

cellation of some passenger trains on the shorter runs and the reopening of shops in various sections of the country, there were few developments on the day which railway executives had expected to furnish the turning point of the strike because of the ultimatum of many roads that all strikers who did not return to work today would forfeit their seniority rights.

Little disorder was reported as the result of the efforts of the roads to reopen their shops at Hoxie, Ark., 50 nonunion workmen sent there for shop duty were chased out of town by a mob and forced to entrain for Poplar Bluff, Mo. Central announced that any of its men who returned to work before July 17 would retain their seniority rights. In Denver, newly employed men were put to work in the shops without outside interference. At Altoona, Pa., it was reported that scores of men working in the shops there had quit to join a demonstration of the strikers.

Some curtailment of train service was reported from St. Louis, Hannibal, Mo.; Louisiana, Illinois, New York and several other states. Interference by railway strikers in Texas with a mail train was reported to the postoffice department today. J. E. Tausig, president of the Western railroad company, appealed to the government for protection for his road shops and said that strikers had stopped a mail train at Moberly, Mo., by cutting the air hose and throwing rocks through the windows of the coaches.

ALLEGED STRIKERS ARE ARRESTED

Augusta, Ga., July 10.—(Special.) Twenty-seven white men, said to be striking shopmen, were arrested at the corner of Fenwick and Eighth streets today on a charge of violating section 888 of the city code, which prohibits assembling on the streets for the purpose of disorder.

Orders to enforce this section of the code were issued by the police department immediately following the shopmen's walkout.

The men were placed under bonds of $100 each to appear before the recorder. Bonds were posted in all cases.

The point where the men were arrested is near the Georgia railroad shops. They declared they had not assembled there for any violence or disorder of any nature.

Their cases will be heard in recorder's court Tuesday morning.

NEEL ATTACKED BY G. J. WHEATLEY

Americus, Ga., July 10.—(Special.) Charges that Joe Hawkins, whose declaration there, W. A. Crossland, federal highway engineer, made a profit of $15,000 in the sale of Oglethys blue granite quarry to the state, was presented to the general assembly, was discharged for "prudent reasons" and that Crossland in replying to the allegations evaded the real question, were made by George D. Wheatley, Hawkins' father-in-law, here today.

Published reports that Hawkins had been "sowing seeds of poison" throughout the state against the highway department since his discharge, were branded as false by Mr. Wheatley.

CAUSE OF DISCHARGE

"In bringing to light over his own signature specific acts by certain parties, surely connected with the state highway department, one Joseph Hawkins acted with conscientious regard for the interests of the citizenship of this state and for the prudent reasons of his own good name while in service of the department," he said.

"In view of the fact that Mr. Hawkins was summarily discharged by State Highway Engineer Neel, closely following the mere mention of his name before the legislature, without his knowledge as a possible successor to Mr. Neel, and without sufficient authority, absolutely without just or sufficient cause, there appears no real reason for Hawkins' discharge, following the prudent reasons on the part of Mr. Neel."

"He was no doubt informed that his own conduct had been exposed and promptly slaughtered one imaginary foe before he might possibly be strength enough to become his real adversary."

"Joe Hawkins will say under oath that when summoned before Mr. Neel within his office, the only salutation accorded him by Mr. Neel was, 'I don't want you out after my job.' To which Mr. Hawkins replied in substance, 'Your information is erroneous; I don't want your job; I am an engineer, not a politician.'"

"And, after further conversation of more or less friendly import, departed in peace. Shortly before this interview Hawkins was transferred from work in Neel's office to Newnan, presumably also for prudent reasons, and finally discharged."

"Can any fair-minded person fail to discern the real sum and substance of this wrong-doing, and the wayfarer man, though a fool, need not fail to see that Mr. Crossland's full denial of the charges contained in Hawkins' letter to Representative McMichael constitutes merely the difference between the unadmitted and the admitted. He did not receive any amount of a commission—perhaps not. But he did receive a stipulated price from his former associates for the interest owned in the Oglethys blue granite quarry while the purchase of that property was actually under consideration by the state highway department."

"It may be of interest to the legislature and, incidentally, to the people of the state, to know exactly the facts as to how and when he came into possession of his interest in the Oglethys blue granite quarry, the consideration paid, and what he got for the same when sold. And also whether the sand and gravel pit company's proposed enterprise failed, or was abandoned, as seems more likely," he said.

NEEL AND CROSSLAND DENY WHEATLEY'S CHARGES

Both W. R. Neel, state highway engineer, and W. A. Crossland, government highway engineer, denied statements made in Americus Monday night by George D. Wheatley, father-in-law of Joseph Hawkins, former highway engineer, relative to charges against the two engineers brought by Mr. Hawkins in a letter sent to Representative McMichael, of Macdonald, Ga., which were read on the floor of the house last Friday.

Additional charges against Neel and Crossland were made in Mr. Wheatley's statement, among them being the charge that Neel discharged Hawkins because he thought Hawkins was seeking his job as state highway engineer.

In a statement issued Monday Mr. Neel declared that the Wheatley statement that Hawkins was discharged because he thought Hawkins was seeking his job as state highway engineer was "incompetent," and that this action had the full approval of the board. As to Mr. Neel's statement that "Neel was afraid of his own crown," Mr. Neel said that was largely controversial and that he did not feel like entering into any "squabble" over it at this time.

Not interested in Company.

Mr. Crossland declared that if "Mr. Wheatley had read carefully" Crossland's statement in Sunday's Constitution "he would have seen that I said I had never at any time owned one cent of stock or had any interest whatsoever" in the Oglethys Granite company, the company named in the controversy.

"I have never owned one cent of stock in the Oglethys Granite company. I did own an interest in another company which was being organized to operate the quarry. It was decided to sell the state. This was an entirely separate company. It was from the Oglethys company and I had no employment or position in it. When it was discovered that it was planned to sell the quarry to the state my associates offered to pay me a stipulated sum for retiring. I refused. I was informed that if I did not do so I would bring ruin to some of my associates in the other company who would feel that they were being worked over by me."

Mr. Crossland said that the machinery and other supplies needed to operate the quarry. The Oglethys company was incorporated under the laws of Georgia and any person going to the records and see whether or not I was ever connected with that company in any capacity," Mr. Crossland said.

Negro Road Convicts Who Disarmed Guard Are Eluding Capture

Edward Freeman and Will Pinkerton, two negro convicts who made a spectacular escape Monday morning from the road gang near Center Hill, after overpowering and disarming Guard D. M. Pittman, had not been captured up to a late hour last night.

Freeman, according to reports at the highway department, is a native of a 20-year sentence for burglary, while Pinkerton was serving an eight-year term for robbery, having completed about two years of the sentence.

Dragnets have been spread by both city and county police in an effort to apprehend the negroes.

The combination of these minorities has served to thwart the administration's purpose to thwart the tariff debate by closure. So, Watson says, republican leaders will seek a similar end through a different route. A resolution amending the rules would require only a majority vote. More than a majority signed the closure petition so Watson feels a resolution amending the rules would be successful.

To prevent a terrific backfire on such action, Lower, the greatest fear, will be taken to conserve the minority rights, he said. This is advisable not only from the standpoint of political tact, but also in light of the possibility that at some future date such action might come back to roost under changed minority conditions.

In explaining the basis of his contention, Watson said Monday that "twenty years ago, senators coming to Washington to legislate, presented their arguments in full and having done their utmost to make their viewpoint prevail, were content to sit down and let the majority rule."

Gundberg,

GOVERNOR URGES KLAN TO UNMASK

Unless the Ku Klux Klan unmask voluntarily Governor Hardwick will recommend to the legislature that the wearing of masks be made unlawful, according to his statement in a letter written to W. W. Rainey, of Columbus, a copy of which was made public at the governor's office Monday.

"There is no room for invisible government in this state," said the governor. "So long as I am governor and can prevent it, I shall not have it, either from the Kimball house or the Klan palace, or the United States capitol at Washington."

Replies to Rainey. The letter of Governor Hardwick, which was in reply to a communication from Mr. Rainey pledging his support for re-election, is as follows: "My Dear Mr. Rainey: The pressure of public business and a slight illness have combined to delay my reply to your letter of the fourth instant. Please accept my excuses for the delay, which has been unavoidable, in the circumstances. "First and foremost of all, let me assure you of my deep and sincere appreciation of your letter. It is the letter of a real man, and I value it and respect it as such. "So far as past differences of opinion between us are concerned, they do not count at all with me, and I am so glad to see that they do not with you. "Individual judgment is the crown jewel of liberty, and it is the glory of this republic that its citizens may honestly differ with one another without losing either respect or regard for each other. I never have bitterness of either mind or heart on questions of this sort. I am never concerned about honest past differences of opinion. The question with me is, not the quarrel of yesterday, but the duties of today and the responsibilities of tomorrow. "I quite agree with you also that we should not be intolerant, even towards honest, law-abiding members of the Ku Klux Klan. There are many honest people who are in it and who went into it with the highest and most patriotic motives for its creed and principles are patriotic and unassailable; outrages by mobs of masked men are growing in number in this state, however, and these performances must be checked. It is my earnest hope that the leaders of this organization may promptly realize the necessity of discarding the mask and for removing all secrecy about their membership list.

Law Threatened. "Unless they do, it will be necessary, in the interests of the public and of law and order, to take strong steps to make the wearing of mask criminal in this state and I shall unhesitatingly advise and recommend such a course to our general assembly. "We have no room for invisible government in this state. So long as I am governor and can prevent it, we shall not have it, either from the Kimball house, or the Klan palace, or the United States capitol at Washington. At any rate, I shall do all in my power to combat it from whatever source it may come. Whatever were the excuses for the first Ku Klux Klan—and they were strong and numerous—there are none for any new or similar character operating to enforce their own opinions and to execute their own desires, outside of the law and courts of the state. It can not be tolerated by the honest men and women of this state and I do not believe it will be tolerated by them. "Permit me, in conclusion, to again express my earnest and sincere appreciation of your letter and of my earnest purpose to continue to make Georgia the very best and every one of which I am capable, to stand for law and order and decency, and new business methods in the administration of our state's affairs, at any political risk, absolutely regardless of all political consequences. "Very sincerely yours, (Signed) "THOMAS HARDWICK, Governor."

Governor Is Commended. By a close vote a resolution by Dr. M. Ashby Jones, pastor of the Ponce de Leon Baptist church, commending Governor Hardwick for his stand against lynchings and the wearing of masks by the Ku Klux Klan, was adopted Monday morning at the regular monthly meeting of the Evangelical Ministers' association. At the same time a report prepared by the commission on civics of the Christian council of Atlanta, John A. Manget, chairman, and dealing with the disposition of liquor cases in June in the city criminal court, was submitted. Makes Motion to Table. Dr. Carl F. Reiser, vice president of the association, presided. Dr. S. E. Watson made a motion to table the resolution endorsing Governor Hardwick's stand in regard to the Klan. Rev. John Ham stated that the opposition to the resolution was caused by fear on the part of some ministers that the resolution would be construed as an endorsement of Governor Hardwick on the part of the association. Mr. Ham said: "I was in favor of the resolution, but voted against it because I was of the opinion that it could be turned into political capital." He explained that the ministers did not want the resolution taken in such a light and it was the attitude of the governor that they were commending. The detailed report of the committee on the Christian council follows: Total number cases called 107 Not guilty 14 Not pressed 9 Bond forfeited 19 Dead docket 2 Mistrial 1 Guilty and sentenced to jail 2 Guilty and sentenced to chain-gang 19 Total 107 Cases fined $500 1 Cases fined $250 3 Cases fined $200 2 Cases fined $150 1 Cases fined $100 0 Cases fined $75 16 Cases fined $50 12 Cases fined $25 58 Average fine imposed on 101 guilty and fined, $52.62. Presuming those forfeiting their bonds were guilty, there was only 15 per cent of those found guilty that were punished other than by license fees, averaging $52.62.

Will this stop the growing disregard for all laws in the state? Georgia believes in the prohibition amendment, overwhelmingly and yet this law is flouted with impunity and 85 per cent of the few caught get off with a small license fee. What are we coming to? How will you vote and what will you do to bring about the enforcement of our laws? Enforcement of law or anarchy, which? JOHN A. MANGET, Chairman Christian Council of Atlanta, Commission on Civics.

COMMISSION ASKED TO WIDEN COURTLAND

Tentative plans which would widen Courtland street from a 60 to an 80-foot thoroughfare, and which, it is claimed, will increase traffic efficiency on the north side several hundred per cent, was submitted to the city planning commission Monday afternoon by Robert H. Whitten, consulting engineer. The commission took the plans under consideration.

In addition to recommending the widening of Courtland street Mr. Whitten also urged the removal of street car tracks from Juniper, Washington and Courtland streets, stating that when this is done, a complete thoroughfare for automobiles from Juniper street south to Washington, thence to Ridge avenue and the Meco on the north side several hundred per cent, was submitted to the city. A petition signed by a large number of Courtland street property owners urging the commission to widen that thoroughfare was read. It bore the approval of Mr. Whitten.

"My plans and the plan as submitted by the Courtland street property owners contemplates no connection with Juniper street except by way of a jog at Ponce de Leon avenue," asserted Mr. Whitten. "It is essential to the development of Courtland street, as a part of the north and south route, that Courtland be swung into a direct connection with Juniper street at North avenue. This should start in Courtland near Linden street and out through Juniper street at North avenue. Both the Courtland street and Piedmont avenue projects are essential parts of a comprehensive major street plan. The two projects, in a measure, are supplementary. It is highly desirable to have alternate routes for street cars and automobile traffic. Both routes are urgently necessary at this time."

But modern construction experts have reduced this ancient art to a science, and by saturating, then double-coating, a thick base of Richardson felt with scientifically tempered natural asphalt, have given Flex-A-Tile Roofing Products their wonderful durability and weather resisting qualities.

For any roofing job you'll find a Flex-A-Tile Product that fully meets all requirements.

according to a bulletin received by Sergeant Ernest H. Galloway, U. S. M. C., Monday.

More than 500 applications were filed in June, which was the largest number ever received in any month since the armistice. In order to get one successful recruit, it was necessary to examine 10 applicants, and, according to Sergeant Galloway, the largest number of rejections are on account of under age. He said that had the orders been received earlier to accept young men of 18 years of age, that a larger number of June applicants would have been accepted, as these orders were not received until July 4.

Special efforts are being made to obtain a limited number of ex-service men for service in the aviation section of the corps, and for musicians for special assignment to the regimental bands at Santo Domingo.

With the enlistment of 21 southerners in the marines during the last week, the local recruiting station can only accept 44 more applications during July.

The following Georgians were among those accepted by Sergeant Galloway: Charles Hutton Tatum, Pelham; Alonzo F. Scruggs, an ex-service man, Rossville; Wilbur Fisk Harrison, Cumming; Donald W. Moore, Rome; Ernest L. Oliver, Macon; William C. Staples, Abbeville; John P. Cook, ex-marine, Griffin; Samuel F. Fuson, three years prior naval service, Savannah; William Layton, Porterdale; William Allen, Social Circle; Hoke Smith Tyson, Swainsboro; John W. Duncan, Elberton, and Clyde T. Brannon, Atlanta.

Governor Brought Into Filibuster
By Senator Nix

Indirectly, Governor Hardwick was charged in the senate Monday with being responsible for the filibuster against repeal of the tax equalization law.

Senator Snow, floor leader of the filibusters, was holding the floor. "Isn't it true that Governor Hardwick is directing this filibuster?" Senator Nix fired at him suddenly.

"So far as I know," replied Senator Snow, "the Governor of Georgia is not directing any filibuster. I do not take dictation from any man. This tax question is a matter of conscience with me."

Fourth Day of Filibuster
The filibuster went into its fourth day Monday. Predictions concerning its probable duration were as conflicting as the senator's views over the tax law itself. There were those who forecasted that it would be broken today, while others asserted that it can go on indefinitely.

As the repeal forces adopted a new twist to kill time by inserting their floor speeches into the record. Senator Johnny Jones, Snow and Campbell had their right hands put into the journal their speeches of the last day's session of the body.

"How did those speeches get into the journal?" asked Senator Nix. "They can't make one speech on the floor and put another in the record. The phraseology of their remarks and those speeches is entirely different."

Losses by Close Vote
A motion was made by Senator Thomas, of the 3rd, to adjourn the session from the record, but it lost by a close vote.

President Clay drew the lines a little closer together Monday morning when he ruled out of order a motion by Senator Jones, of the 37th, that a roll call on a motion to dispense with the reading of the journal be verified. The president held that there is no senate rule requiring verification of the roll call. Immediately after reading the journal Senator Snow moved to adjourn until Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. Senator Jones offered a motion that the senate adjourn, which would bring it back into session Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

President Clay ruled that he would have to put Senator Snow's motion first, since it carried the longest time of adjournment. Senator Campbell then moved to adjourn until Tuesday morning at 11:30 o'clock.

"That motion is incidental, subsidiary and out of order," protested Senator Nix. "Such motions are wheels within a wheel."

The chair declined to rule on the point and put the question to the senate, which sustained the point by Senator Nix 19 to 18.

"I move the senate reconsider its action," said Senator Campbell.

Motion is Lost
"That's another incidental, subsidiary, dilatory, filibustering motion," declared Nix. The motion to reconsider lost 20 to 17.

Senator Snow renewed his motion to adjourn until Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock.

President Clay ruled that the motion was another "wheel within a wheel," and out of order.

Senator Jones, of the 37th, was up with the declaration that a motion to adjourn was always in order and protested that to construe it otherwise would be to change the rules of the senate, which could not legally be done except by two-thirds vote.

"We're not changing the rules," interposed Senator Nix. "We're just interpreting them." The point was sustained. The motion to adjourn until 11 o'clock Tuesday morning lost. Regular adjournment hour had arrived and the body automatically stood adjourned until 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

TENOR WILL SING
FOR WGM TONIGHT

John Low Smith Will Feature Program by Constitution—Miss Monk Is Accompanist.

A tenor new to WGM's radio audiences will be heard at the 9 o'clock broadcasting period tonight in six selections. He is John Low Smith, whose clear tenor voice has elicited much praise from Atlanta people.

There are a "good many" of the more popular numbers—ballads—that have been overworked to a certain extent since broadcasting started and added interest is found in Mr. Smith's program for he will sing numbers which have not before been heard from WGM.

Miss Annie Monk will play the piano accompaniment. In compliment to Frank L. Stanton, Georgia poet, Mr. Smith will open his program with "Sweet Miss Mary," the words of which were written by Mr. Stanton.

For the second number Mr. Smith will present a song that is seldom heard, but which has an unusually pretty theme. It is "The Song That Reached My Heart."

"Smilin' Through," always delightful, will be his third selection.

A dialect song by Carrie Jacobs-Bond, "A Little Bit of Honey," will be sung by Mr. Smith as his fourth number.

"Lassie o' Mine," a pretty Scotch ballad, has been placed on the program for the fifth selection. It was written by Walt.

Concluding the program will be another ballad, "Molly Bawn," by Lover.

FIFTEEN MINUTES OF RADIO EACH DAY

BY EDWARD N. DAVIS
Formerly Technical Electrical Expert for United States Government

LESSON NO. 91.

Radio Dictionary.

Meter—A unit of linear measurement in the metric system, equivalent to 39.37 inches or a trifle over three and one-quarter feet. The various lengths of radio waves are expressed in meters.

Grid—One of the three elements of the vacuum tube, inserted between the filament and plate and usually constructed in the form of a metallic mesh or coil. A small amount of energy applied to the grid controls a comparatively large amount of energy in the plate circuit.

Volt—A fundamental unit of the electric circuit. It is the pressure or electromotive force necessary to maintain a flow of current of one ampere through a resistance of one ohm.

Permeability—The permeability of a substance may be defined as the ratio of the number of magnetic lines set up in a unit volume of that substance, to the number of magnetic lines set up in the same amount of air by the same magnetizing force.

Frequency—In a simple alternating current circuit, frequency is the number of cycles performed by the current per second. The unit of frequency is the cycle per second.

The Plate—An element of the vacuum tube. A type in general use consists of a metallic cylinder which surrounds the grid and filament. When the filament is charged to a positive potential it draws the electrons emitted by the filament, thus providing a conductive path for the "plate to filament" current.

Electrolyte—The conducting fluid or solution in which the positive and negative plates of an electric cell are immersed. In a familiar form of lead-acid storage battery it consists of a diluted solution of sulphuric acid.

"Hard" Tubes—Vacuum tubes in which the air has been exhausted to a high degree, generally used as amplifiers and oscillators, as distinguished from "soft" tubes in which the degree of vacuum is lower and are preferably used as detectors.

"Damped" Waves—Waves in which the successive oscillations have decreased amplitude. This type of wave is emitted by a spark transmitter and is commonly referred to as a discontinuous wave as distinguished from a continuous wave or wave of constant amplitude.

Inductive Reactance—The opposition offered by self induction to the flow of an alternating current.

Best Current—A current, resulting from the interaction of two currents of unequal frequency applied to a circuit. The frequency of the beat current is the numerical difference of the two applied frequencies.

FEATURE PROGRAM
SET FOR WEDNESDAY

Greek Tenor and Talented Pianist to Give Concert.

A program of unusual interest and merit has been arranged by The Constitution for Wednesday evening, July 12, at 9 o'clock Wednesday evening. The program will present a program of classical numbers in tenor solos by Nicholas Mulinos and piano solos by Miss Helen Schaidt.

Mr. Mulinos has been in the United States only a short time, but in the concerts in which he has appeared in the south and east he has scored highly. In the memorial concert to Caruso recently in Charleston, S. C., Mr. Mulinos was the principal artist and was given a big ovation following his delightful numbers.

A Greek by birth, Mr. Mulinos went to Italy where he studied voice under Lombardi and Piccoli. He sang in opera in both Naples and Milan. He is being introduced in Atlanta by Signor E. Volpi, opera coach.

Miss Schaidt has been on programs from WGM several times and her talent as a pianist and accompanist is well known. As an interpreter of the old composers, Miss Schaidt has few equals.

Atlantans Are Named
On National Council
Of Economic League

Notification of their appointment as members of the national council of the National Economic League to represent the state of Georgia was received Monday by Clark Howell, John S. Canfield, Robert E. Maddox, M. L. Brittain, W. M. Howard, Eugene R. Black, Mills B. Lane, A. G. Powell, S. H. Sibley, John M. Stanton, Basil Anthony, Jerre M. Pound, Boykin Wright, Hooper Alexander, W. T. Anderson, Plato Durham, W. A. Covington, H. J. Fullbright, William F. Quinn, J. B. Jones, and others.

The aim of the league, as disclosed in the constitution and by-laws, is to provide a means for giving expression to the informed and disinterested opinion of the country regarding economic, social and political problems, and to educate and lead public thought with a view of creating a public opinion that will be a vital and controlling force in the government.

The principal duties of the national council are to determine issues for consideration, to nominate members for special committees, and to vote on questions submitted by these committees.

CODE NECESSARY
IN RECEPTION
OF NEWS FLASHES

This present broadcast craze seems to have placed code work in the background, but there are some phases of radio in which the code will exist forever. These phases included long distance amateur transmission and some of the high powered stations that carry on general traffic.

We will concern ourselves at present with these latter stations. Their one great advantage is speed in transmission. Automatic sending machines are installed in some of these stations that send at a rate of a hundred or more words a minute. Speeds up to 400 words a minute have been successfully transmitted with these machines.

If a person is willing to expend the time and energy necessary to learn the code many interesting things may be gathered from the other that had before been behind a screen. News from steamships, government stations, long distance commercial stations and amateur stations would be made understandable.

News from Carnarvon, Paris, Nantou and Rome could be heard before its publication. The apparatus needed is not so very expensive; many people having heard foreign stations, using but a single tube. As these stations operate on very long wave lengths, the best type of set would be the three honeycomb coil variety. A long aerial is necessary for best results. If you have several steps of amplification and the correct honeycomb coils you ought not have any trouble in getting the foreign stations.

Carnarvon, Wales, sends with an undamped wave of 14,000 meters and its call letters are MUE. Eiffel Tower, FL, sends on 10,000 meters, and Lyons, TX, on 15,500. Rome, IT, uses an 11,000 meter wave, and Nantou, POZ, uses one of 12,600.

CHILDREN'S SONGS
FEATURE PROGRAM

Miss Elsa Stenger and Little Miss Kimball Delight Radio Audience With Selections.

Radio enthusiasts were treated last evening at 9 o'clock to a unique program from WGM, when The Constitution presented a program in which children's songs and recitations were featured.

The program was given by Miss Elsa Stenger, soprano, and Little Miss Kimball, reciter. Miss Stenger is a pupil of Signor E. Volpi, while Miss Kimball, who is just 11 years of age, is a pupil in the Eastlake School of Expression.

Both Miss Stenger and Miss Kimball have been pleasantly heard in entertainments in Atlanta and no doubt were well received by radio enthusiasts. Miss Stenger sang one or two numbers which are not children's songs and in these, more than in the children's numbers, she demonstrated her sweet soprano voice.

The first two numbers were songs by Miss Stenger. She sang "Farwell," by Schumann, and "Swinging," by Hartog. She was accompanied at the piano by her mother, Mrs. Georgia Stenger.

Miss Kimball's first recitation was given as the third number. She presented "The Woman," a clever little recitation which she did creditably.

Two more vocal numbers were next. For these Miss Stenger sang "A Doll's Weeping," by Johns, and "Laddie," by Thayer.

"Angela," another clever recitation, by Miss Kimball, was the next number on the program. She sang the last line.

Concluding the program were three more vocal numbers by Miss Stenger. They were "Little O' Dear," and "Japanese Lullaby," by deKoven, and "Carissima," by Penn.

RECEIVER IS ASKED FOR CANDY COMPANY

Petition for injunction and the appointment of a receiver for the Sophie Mae Candy Corporation, Ivy street, was filed in Fulton superior court Monday by G. C. Herren and his wife, who allege J. E. Coppedge, president, and Shirley H. Huff, treasurer, "beat them out of $1,050 in the sale to them of worthless stock."

The Herrons allege Coppedge paid them in stock for their skilled services in making candy and had never paid a dividend on $500 they allege they paid for stock when the company was being organized. They charge that Coppedge and Huff now say the stock is canceled.

Judge George L. Bell temporarily restrained the defendants from preventing the plaintiffs attending stockholders' meetings and from declaring their stock worthless. He also cited the defendants to show cause, July 29, why a receiver should not be appointed.

SPRING ST. VIADUCT

Contracts for the project will be let by September 1, Mr. Cooper stated and the viaduct will be completed in about 10 months, he said.

The Constitution's Novel-a-Week FALSE FACES

BY HUGH KAHLER

Next Week, "Snowdrift"
By James B. Hendryx

"I've got all the dope on him, Kane. He's going by the name of Douglas, and he's made up to look like a sort of shaven and stooped and his hair gray again. He's a wizard at disguising himself. I don't know, right now, what he really looks like when I knew him he was a square-shouldered, middle-aged man, with an easy, hearty way of talking, and there wasn't so much of a streak of gray in his hair. But when I caught up with him, just before he framed me, he was a whiskery old wreck, with hair and beard almost white and a fine case of tremor in his wrists. Right now he's got a new stunt according to the note that tipped me off. He's painted a birthmark on his left cheek. That's really clever, because it makes it hard to get any description of him, if he should happen to strike the trail, except just that mark. When he washes it off, he's a different man, even if he doesn't change another thing. That's exactly like Parrot. He's left so many contradictory descriptions behind him that I doubt whether the police could get him identified if they caught him. He's clever; he crook even touched him for that, but I'll know him, all right."

His jaw closed and his hands tightened.

"How?" demanded Thorne.

"Eyes," said Lawton briefly. "He can't change them, and there isn't another pair like them on earth. I'll know him, when I find him."

Under Lawton's instructions they drove slowly as the afternoon waned and the shadows of the wayside trees lengthened and deepened across the road. They slipped out of his fingers, because he could make quite sure that Fraser, at least, was keeping on the trail, and would be able to furnish reinforcements in case of need.

They passed Thorne, because as they turned corners, he caught glimpses of another car which pursued them craftily. It was dark before they reached Hamilton, and they slipped through its ill-lighted streets without attracting any more attention than any other car. Lawton guided their driver with curt instructions at turns until they had reached a snugly respectable residence district on the far side of the town. Here, he reduced speed, they crept along the club until Lawton found the house he was looking for, the car stopped.

Thorne glanced at the building sharply. It was a three-story brick structure, with a street door housing a shop of some sort, the windows of which were darkened by lowered shades. The two upper stories were evidently designed for living apartments, and a doorway with two bell buttons in the frame led up to them from beside the store. Lawton stopped to glance at these, and straightened with a barely audible sound of satisfaction—a quick expulsion of his breath which startled Thorne by its force.

He saw that the man's eyes had narrowed and his face had become a mask of grim hatred of the cold, intelligent kind that quickens the faculties instead of blinding them. Lawton touched the bell, and the program. You help here. Ring the lower bell, and when they let you in, I'll follow. Go straight up the stairs, and keep them busy while I go on up. Say you're looking for a friend of yours who understands boards there. When they suggest that it must be upstairs, you come on up and help, if you like. But remember, you're not to interfere, whatever happens. This is my job. You'll stand up and say nothing till I've got what I want; see?"

"You'll leave him for me, though?" he said, temporizing. "No bumping him off before we turn?"

"No fear! I told you I risk my neck to keep him alive, didn't I? That goes. Come on. We might as well go up. There's a light in his room. He's there. Quickly, now, and remember to give a chance to get in."

Thorne rang the bell and presently the light clicked and they found themselves in a narrow hall nearly dark, where steep stairs led away and up toward the store. Thorne went first, Lawton at his heels. At the head of the stairs Thorne found a shirt-sleeved, untidy man confronting him resentfully. He stepped abruptly past him into a stuffy, smoke-filled living room, and, after a hostile stare, the other turned from the door.

"What do you want?" he demanded aggressively. "You got your nerve with you all right."

Thorne had seen the face somewhere, but it did not identify itself to him at once, and his mind was fixed on the upper floor and the risk he was running in letting Lawton out of his sight before reinforcements arrived. He lifted his brows.

"I'm looking for my friend Douglas," he explained. "I understood he lived here."

The eyes narrowed and the face regarded him malevolently. "He lives upstairs," said the unpleasant voice. "What do you want to see him about, huh?"

Thorne stared. "What's that to you?" he demanded sweetly. "Sorry to bother you, but—"

"Don't mention it. I'm glad you came in. I been hoping to get a look at you for two-three days. Number Forty-eight Ninety-six. Don't move at all!"

A heavy gun appeared miraculously from the fellow's hip and pointed close at Thorne's solar plexus. Instinctively his hands rose. The other laughed. "Nerve! You got all there is! Break out of Hamilton and walk bang into a keeper's house two days later? This is mighty friendly of you. Number Forty-eight Ninety-six. I'll remember it while you don't the rest of your life. Money even has its uses."

Thorne caught his breath. "Man, I'm Tom Thorne. I was in there doing a pigeon stunt and you're bailing me up. I've got Lawton here—after Douglas—Timothy Parrot. For Heaven's sake put away that cannon and help. I'm single-handed, and you'll make the odds even. Hop, now. Lawton's upstairs with Parrot."

"Don't let 'em down. Keep 'em just like they are." A harsh chuckle greeted his eager demands. "Maybe you got Lawton along, but he'll wait. I'll just get the tongs on you, before we go ahead."

And while Thorne raged helplessly, handcuffs snapped on his wrists and his arms were manacled behind him, leaving him utterly useless. He could not even use his hands, now, to seize and hold an escaping prisoner. Too late he recognized the man as one of the prison keepers, a heavy-handed brute dressed by taking his fellow-employees. He had bungled the business hideously; it would be sheer, blind luck if both Parrot and Lawton did not slip out of his fingers after this. But I always play the sure thing first. I got you, anyway."

"I've got you, Parrot. I've got you, you murderer—"

Bad Business.

McCarthy stiffened, listening. "Man, get them—get them quick—never mind me! It's Timothy Parrot and Lawton—and we'll lose 'em both in another second if you fool around down here."

The man's face drew into a dubious scowl. He hesitated, one hand clutching Thorne's helpless arm. "You may be handing it to me straight," he conceded, "but I ain't taking any chances. They got to come down here to make a get-away, and I'll just stand in the door and gather 'em in. But first I'll fix you, so you don't queer the play, you go ahead."

He whipped out a handkerchief and knotted it cruelly between Thorne's teeth, gagging him so that he could not even breathe. Then, with a sudden lurch, he carried his prisoner across the room to a closet, flung him into it, and locked the door. Thorne kicked bravely at the door, but to no avail. He stopped after a minute to strain his ears for some sound from overhead, but none came. He heard McCarthy telephoning in a lowered tone and realized, with some small comfort, that the man was right, according to his lights. He was playing it safe by making sure of the prisoner, he already had, and getting reinforcements to help retake those still at large. Thorne saw that by creating a disturbance now he would only lessen the chance of capturing Parrot. It was humiliating to be found, trusted and helpless, while a stupid brute like McCarthy made the arrest on which he had set his heart, but the important thing was that the arrest should be made. He must grin and bear the ridicule that would certainly descend upon him when the story reached headquarters, comforted by the knowledge that it had been his plan which had led to the capture.

The moments dragged interminably before there was a sound of steps and lowered voices and the key clicked again in the door of his makeshift cell. Ungentle hands dragged him into the light, and triumphant, hostile faces grinned at him. He looked in vain for Bolin or Fraser. Where were they? Why didn't they come and set him right with these Hamilton police?

"Did you get 'em? Have you got Parrot?" He could not control his eagerness.

"Oh, yes, we got Parrot, all right, all right—and we got you, too," said the man who held him. "The little old chair for you, Kane, an' you got it comin' at that. Talk about cold nerve! Bumping off a guy right here in Hamilton, an'—"

"Bump—what do you mean. Who's killed?" Lawton asked.

A chuckle answered him. "You poor simp! Lawton slipped it over on you, all right, all right! He's made his get-away and left you holdin' the bag and lookin' foolish. You asked for it, and you got it."

WHAT AGE IS BEST?

At what age is a woman at her best? What they consider is the answer to this question has been unconsciously given by a large number of people in this country.

Twenty-seven thousand people wrote love stories for a recent scenario contest conducted by a newspaper. These love stories represented, of course, the kind of things these people, (not professional writers, just anybody) were interested in. And one of the most remarkable features noticed about them by one of the judges who made a careful study of these manuscripts, was that the majority of the heroines were about 27 or 28.

From a Heroine of 16 to—
Fifty years ago the average heroine was under 20.

The heroine of Shakespeare's most thrilling love story, Juliet, is supposed to have been between 14 and 16.

And today we have more than 20,000 heroines over 27.

Further than that I read a delightful story the other day in which the heroine was 35, and not married—until the highly satisfactory end of the story.

Also I know a delightful collection of stories called "After 30 Stories."

A Heroine of Sixty.
And to cap the climax, I have been reading (doubtless you have, too) a remarkable love story in which the heroine was a woman of 60, pitted against a girl of 25. I do not think the author is going to strain our credulity by having her win out (since writing this I have read the last installment, and I was right) but he certainly has made her convincing.

Of course stories are only stories but there is no doubt that they reflect public opinion and manners very accurately.

Could there be better news for women?

A Good Era for Women.
The swiftness of woman's blooming, the long period of her decline, has always been one of the biggest tragedies of her sex. If she can come in a slower maturity of charm her life is going to be more happily balanced. The age limit for woman as a worker and as an active partner in pleasure has been greatly extended—witness the vanishing of the grand father, in old understanding of the word, as a person who wore caps, sat by the fire and was interested only in children and children's children. And now, if the age limit in this direction too is becoming more elastic, women certainly have reason to be glad they waited to this age to be born.

Tomorrow—Don't Do It.

A Chinese Rug

Increasing loveliness is the test of real beauty. Nothing that is truly beautiful can ever become tiresome.

Real beauty is not wholly conveyed in a single glance, nor is it exhausted after a thousand years.

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever; its loveliness increases; it will never pass into nothingness."

A beautiful rug will bring fresh loveliness to you each day. The purchase of an Oriental rug is an experience in a lifetime. The acquisition of an Oriental rug is an adventure.

To enjoy an Oriental rug is to taste the rich magic of the East.

Warp and weft, they are woven of the very lives of the most imaginative, the most romantic, and the most picturesque of the people of the earth.

When you see our Chinese Rugs you will realize that the purchase of one will result in more than the possession of a beautiful floor covering.

The possession of such rugs as these leads to a deepening of the aesthetic sensibilities, a quickening of appreciation of the beauty of life.

JOCK HUTCHISON SETS NEW QUALIFYING RECORD IN OPEN

Chicago Pro Plays Great Golf and Ends Qualifying Rounds 5 Under Par—135

Jock Missed an 18-Foot Putt on Eighteenth Hole on Morning Round for a 66—Hard Rain Softens the Course.

Glencoe, Ill., July 10.—(Special.)—At 9 o'clock tomorrow morning Bobby Jones, of Atlanta, present southern amateur champion, and Leo Diegel, professional of New Orleans, will tee off on the first eighteen of their 36-hole qualifying round of the national open golf tournament.

Diegel has been playing sensational golf in his practice rounds, and Jones, while he has not been burning up the course, has been playing sound golf.

It was thought here that the course would be in perfect shape for the rounds tomorrow unless there are further hard rains to-night. The excessive rain that had been bothering the long hitters in the practice rounds was absent in the play today, and the greens that were in wonderful shape before the rains were rather spongy.

Stoke Country Club, Glencoe, Ill., July 10.—(By the Associated Press.)—The big wheel of the qualifying rounds in the national open golf tournament turned one-third of its course today as 108 players from all parts of the world fought through 36 holes for a chance in the finals Thursday and Friday with only 27 reaching the goal.

The end of the day found all of the national and international stars shooting today within the coveted circle, although a few had narrow escapes, and a new record for two rounds of qualifying play made by Jock Hutchison of Chicago, who held the British open championship last year.

Jock turned in a card of 67-68-135, the lowest mark ever made in an American tournament. Mike Brady, of Detroit with 143; Jim Barnes, of Yellam Manor, N. Y., present titleholder, with 144; and Al Smith, of England, with another 144, and Kirkwood, the Australian champion, with 146, followed along behind Jock.

The other qualifiers ranged up to 152. The low 24 to qualify, but they made it 27.

"Chick" Evans, of Chicago, who probably has held titles more often than any amateur in the world, came two strokes of failing to qualify when he went off his game in the first afternoon nine, and took 42, eight over par. He pulled himself together in the final nine, shooting a 36 against par 36, and this, with his morning 73, gave him 151 and placed him near the bottom of those today's play who will go on to the final.

Tomorrow and Wednesday new fields will go out with the low 24 and try for twenty-fourth qualifying for the finals.

Most of the morning scores were rather high because of a heavy rain last night. This rain, while making the course soggy at the start, left it in perfect shape throughout most of the day, and the golfers who had been used to the concrete-like fairways, found trouble in judging distances, and there was no roll on the ball.

In the afternoon a majority settled into their natural stride and the golf seen by the several thousand spectators who paid an admission fee of $1, this being the first time an admission fee has been charged, was of the type read about but seldom witnessed. Ben Hur, of Chicago, pitched holes, and seemingly impossible recoveries from traps and bunkers were among the shots which the clubs produced.

Hutch's Great Golf.

In this 36 holes, Jock Hutchison hung up one eagle, nine birdies, 21 par holes and over par five times. He started out by topping a drive, and then going into a trap for a six on the par four first. The rest of his morning round was just one perfect shot after another, none of them spectacular, but each a masterpiece. Approaches went dead to the cup, drives were straight toward the flag and every putt was true except one fire foot on the tenth, which rimmed the cup. Jock made the first nine in a 34 and was three under on a 33 on the second.

In the afternoon, Hutchison again started out with more than par for the first hole, taking a five when his mauling pitch caught a sand trap. Then he settled down, paring birdies and ending with a 73 for the nine. Starting the twenty-eighth, he was never in trouble.

Coming up the home stretch with the crowd cheering every shot, Hutchison started with a perfect 250-yard drive and then laid a 220-yard brassie 20 feet from the cup. As he stepped up to sink it, the putt some one yelled: "Sink it, Jock, old boy."

"All right, sink it, I'll certainly do that," came back in Jock's hoarse voice, and he sent the ball curving along the side of the hill top to an eagle 3.

Brady Shoots 143.

Mike Brady, the Detroit shooter, who turned in a 143, was paired with Jock.

Jim Barnes who is defending his title, played a brilliant game. [It was in trouble on the 27th hole, but his spectacular recoveries kept the gallery in an uproar.]

On the 21st Barnes' drive was on the side of a bunker in a patch of sand and behind a rift of heavy-matted grass.

Standing three feet lower than the ball, Jim came around with a side arm swipe and the ball went 215 yards straight to the green. That was a sample of the shots he was making all day.

"Chick" Evans paired with Barnes, shot a nice 73 in the morning, making the last nine in par 36. He had only a few bad shots, the worst being a missed 18-inch putt on the ninth.

In the afternoon Evans repeatedly sent his drives into sand pits and missed his approaches until he had a nice score. The course today was extremely difficult. The second batch of would-be qualifiers will go out tomorrow.

Among those who will present British open champion, who will be paired with George Duncan, tied for runner-up to him in the British open, Gene Benson, of Pittsburgh; Bobby Jones, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga.; Leo Diegel, of New Orleans; Jesse Guigard, of Boston, national amateur champion, Browns Divide Again.

Boston, July 10.—For the third successive playing day Boston and St. Louis divided a double header today, the Browns winning the opener 5 to 4 in 13 innings and the Red Sox taking the second 4 to 3. In the third inning of the first game Burns hit a home run over the left field fence with two on base. The winning run just failed to qualify as a run.

Jacobson and Severid and a successful squeeze play hunt by Ellerbe. E. Smith was sent into bat for Quinn in the 13th, but was taken out and replaced by Foster when Pruett went into the box for St. Louis. In the second game Pratt's single in the sixth scored two runs. Sleser was thrown out on a close play at first for the final out as Tobin was crossing the plate with what would have been the third run.

Smith's Wild Peg Which Led to Three Runs Loses Second Game to Lookouts

Final Score 4 to 3—Wano and Mayer Start Battering Rally in 9th—Bernsen Hits Homer.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 10.—(Special.)—Again playing jam-up baseball in all departments, and profiting by the kind indulgence of Catcher Smith, the Lookouts won their second straight victory from Atlanta this afternoon by a score of 4 to 3. Save for inability to hit Napier in the pinches, the home team gave a most impressive exhibition, as did the Crackers on defense except for the battery. Drake pitched in fine fettle and seemed to have the game under lock and key made from the fifth, when the home athletes made three, until the ninth, when hits by Wano and Mayer, with a boot by Claytor, hitting added to the second in two days, put the two runners on second and third with none out. The ex-Barnes pulled out, however, with only one run, and the Crackers were left alone.

Lee again played a flashy game at short and had the fans rooting for him. He also helped in the attack. Drake, hitting added to the second in two days, put the two runners on second and third with none out. The ex-Barnes pulled out, however, with only one run, and the Crackers were left alone.

Home total, the outfielder getting three hits and taking one of Tetter's slants on the sleeve. Bernsen's four-base drive in the seventh was one of the longest of the year.

Hock started in on Drake with a smash that barked the pitcher's leg for a hit. Moore sacrificed. Hock took third on Wano's ground-out to second, and scored when Mayer beat a home runner to Wright. Napier held one hitterless in the eighth, but that usually expensive break of passing the pitcher to start an inning. Clayton singled to center, Drake stroking a second in, and Bernsen hit him on the arm with the throw. Drake and Clayton scored and Lee to left center. Anderson's hot safety

In the sixth, one out, Drake was again the thorn in Napier's side. He singled to center and took third on Clayton's busy out to the second. In the eighth, Bernsen hit a home run and replaced by Foster when Pruett went into the box for St. Louis. In the second game Pratt's single in the sixth scored two runs. Sleser was thrown out on a close play at first for the final out as Tobin was crossing the plate with what would have been the third run.
